Phone rings:

"Hello this is the Police Department. We have your son here at the Hospital. He is ok, but he attempted suicide by slashing his wrists. The doctors are working on him. He lost blood but should be ok."

My son's speech at his wedding:

"I look back over five years ago, laying in a puddle of blood. I would have never thought I'd be standing here today with my beautiful wife at my wedding. I never thought I'd get married. Thank you all for coming to celebrate with us."
